

I am opposed to the proposal to relax the rules regarding media ownership. I feel that by creating monopolies, American citizens will not have any sources of fair and accurate reporting on events that are important to the future of this country. Enron and WorldComm have shown us that large corporations are only out for their own self-interests at the cost of the public. By allowing the creation of large Media monopolies we will be heading down the same road. I request that more time be spent to carefully study the long term effects of this proposal and more time to allow the citizens of the U.S. to give further input and discussion.
